The Doom of the Federal Union.

The first election of Lincoln to the Presidency was the harbinger of civil war among the states. His second election is the final doom of the Federal Union. The returns rushing in by telegraph from all quarters, to the minds of all discerning men, are like clouds of earth east upon the coffin of the dead Republic.—Milwaukee News.

One of the customary tricks of demagogues is the attempt to persuade the people that the election of their candidate and the adoption of their governmental policy, is the only method under heaven whereby the country can be saved. The people are supposed to be capable of self-government so long as they adhere to certain men and adopt certain measures; but the moment these men and these measures are repudiated, then the idea of a popular government is a snare and a delusion. The Chicago Times recently advised its readers to emigrate to Canada where the thunder of "abolition" majorities are unknown, and where weary and disgusted copperheads can find rest; and more recently, it declares that the result of the election last week will convince thinking men and conservative "men" that the experiment of self-government is a failure.

The News feels called upon to pronounce the doom of the Federal Union. "The return," it whispers through its blinding tears, "rushing in by telegraph from all quarters, to the minds of all discerning men, are like clouds of earth east upon the coffin of a dead republic." The News has doubtless become familiar with the dismal rattle of shots upon somebody's coffin, but that which the people have been baying out of sight forever, is the loathsome form of a defunct copperheadism, in order that the republic may live forever.

We respectfully submit to the News that if the republic be dead, it is at present a very lively corpse.

There was a time when democracy was a proud name—when with all its faults, the democratic party stood by the country and the flag. What it was then, and where it stands now, Alexander H. Bullock of Massachusetts thus eloquently sets forth:

"We once had a democratic party vital with an intense national sentiment; nationality was its passion. It spoke defiance to the public enemies, and support to its government. It had caught the spirit of the great day in the days when he scanned the claim of the colors at the masthead to be the credentials of our seamen. (Loud cheering.) It stood by the angry Jackson, and gave to him the powers of war and the keys of the Treasury when he threatened the French king. It granted everything to the conquerors of Mexico, and wove garlands for every returning veteran. In war it was its element. Its cry then was, 'Country, right or wrong?' (Cheers.) It drove the national enemies those who found fault with the war measures of the administration. It was, indeed, a war democracy in all those days. But how are the mighty fallen. (Applause.) This party of martial traditions has suddenly let the blood all out of its veins. (Laughter.) The choral music of the Union is lost to its ears. It no longer rises with the victories of the flag, but finds its success only in the defeat of our arms. (Loud applause.) At a time when the President is struggling for the life of the Government, it brings to him not a chaplet of laurel but a crown of thorns. And even a former statesman of Boston in the days of Whig ascendancy, who as her representative in Congress, voted supplies and forces to penetrate Mexico, is now found voting fraternal resolutions for these men, and supporting for the Vice-President one who has publicly declared his preference for dismemberment of the country rather than a prosecution of this war."

It is Robert C. Wintrop—dishonored representative of an honorable name—whom the last sentence of Col. Bullock demolishes.

How to prevent wet feet.—A writer in the Mechanics' Magazine, who says he has had three pairs of boots last him six years, and thinks he will not require any more for six years to come, tells how he treats them:

I put a pound each of tallow and resin in a pot on the fire; when melted and mixed apply it hot to the boot with a painter's brush until neither the sole nor upper will soak any more. If it is desired that the boots should immediately take a polish dissolve an ounce of wax in a teaspoonful of turpentine and lamp glass. A day or two after the boots have been treated with the resin and tallow, rub over them this wax and turpentine, and rub before the fire. Then the exterior will have a coat of wax alone, and shine like a mirror. Tallow and grease become rancid and rot the stitching or leather; but the resin gives it an antiseptic quality which preserves the whole.

Useless young ladies.—A contemporary thus seriously speaks of the very large class of useless young ladies who glory in being above useful employment.

The number of idle, useless girls in all our large cities seems to be steadily increasing. They lounge or sleep through their morning, parade the streets during the afternoon, and assemble in frivolous companies of their own and the other sex to pass away their evenings. What a store of unhappiness for themselves and others are they laying up for the coming time, when real duties and high responsibilities shall be thoughtlessly assumed. They are skilled in no domestic duties—any they despise them; they have no habit of industry nor taste for the useful. What will they be as wives and mothers? Alas for the husbands and children, alas for themselves! Who can wonder if domestic unhappiness and domestic ruin follows?

An interesting book, free to every body.—Messrs. Bennett, Pieters & Co., of Chicago, have published a most interesting almanac for 1863, which can be had gratis, from any druggist in the country. The title reads: "Bennett, Pieters & Co.'s Almanac, free to all, containing a complete list of the U. S. Tax and Tariff laws, all practically useful and valuable suggestions to correspondents. A table of the rate of currency when gold is at certain premiums. A table of the premium on gold each day in 1862, '63, '64, and much other valuable information." Our readers should not fail to procure a copy of this work. If you druggist is not supplied, have him order them, or write to B. P. & Co., and it will be sent by mail.

THE NORTHWESTERN CONFEDERACY.

PILOT.

Testimony of Horace Heffron, a Grand Seignior of the Order of American Knights.

Before the Military Commission sitting in Indianapolis, Mr. Horace Heffron, one of the prisoners, was on the 4th inst., charged with treason and put upon the stand as a witness for the government. He testified as follows: I joined an Order called American Knights somewhere in the latter part of the year '63, probably in the month of November or December. I have no means of telling the precise time. I have not my diary with me, if I had I could tell the precise day.

Q. State to the court what were the general purposes and objects of that order as far as you learned.

A. In the first place I understood there were two organizations, one within the other; the civil organization, to which the mass of the members belong, and which, as far as I ever knew, was purely political, to bring out the Democratic vote to the polls, and to insure the success of the principles of the Democratic party, by every means in our power to get every voter out to cast his vote; and as we have been told by those who instructed us, that it was the deliberate design and arrangement of the abolition party to prevent voting, we determined to have a free fight or a fair election. I have been told by members of the order that the other portion of the organization had for its object the separating of the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Kentucky from the Eastern States, and make a Northwestern Confederacy; and failing in that, join our fortunes with the South. That was the military part of it, which was not communicated or known to the members of the civil organization; and I presume I never would have known it had it not been for my position of Deputy Grand Commander.

Q. What portion of the members belonged to the military portion of the organization?

A. Only the leaders; they were to control the order, through a committee of thirteen, who were to be known only to the Grand Commander and themselves. They were to so control us as to bring us into their trap. That was why I said it was a humbug, and I said I would have nothing to do with it.

Q. Have any of the schemes of the Order come to your knowledge since then?

A. Yes, sir. The schemes of a few of the leaders of this military part of the Order, and the scheme of these were unknown to the greater mass of the Order.

Q. Do you say that it was to these military leaders alone this was confined?

A. Yes, sir, I think so.

Q. Was Bullock considered a military leader?

A. He was; but there was a man over him.

Q. Who was that?

A. It was Dr. Bowles.

Q. Please to explain that.

A. The State was divided into Military Departments, and there was an officer of the military department who was Supreme Commander of the Grand Commander of the civil department, who had his Adjutant, Staff, &c. He controlled the military department and saw to the arming, ammunition, and the procuring of funds.

Q. Then the civil was sub-servient to the military?

A. Yes, sir, and knew nothing except the few who are in the confidence of the military.

Q. Did you learn who was on the staff of Dr. Bowles?

A. Yes, sir, it is James B. Wilson—he told me himself.

Q. He told me he was Adjutant General on Dr. Bowles' staff. In fact, nearly all the information I ever received, except what I received on the 16th and 17th of February, I received from Mr. Wilson, after his return from Dr. Bowles', at French Lick Springs, Orange county.

Q. What did you learn in reference to the arming of this Order?

A. I never understood that the men of the rank and file of the civil organization were to be armed, that is, at the expense of the Order.

Q. How were they to arm?

A. They were to do it among themselves.

Q. Who was it that was to be armed by the Order?

A. These men who were to be under the control of the Commanding General, that is the military commander.

Q. How did they make this division as to who were to be armed by the Order, and who were to arm themselves.

A. There were certain men they selected to whom to communicate that which it would not do to communicate to everybody.

Q. Did they go into a township, for instance, and pick out the men that were to be armed by the Order?

A. I think not.

Q. Then how could they tell whom they were to arm, and whom they could rely upon to arm themselves.

A. I do not know. They had a way of ascertaining the number of arms of different kinds that the members of the Order had in this way. They would take a sheet of paper and rub it in columns, heading each column with apples, corn, beans, or anything you please, so that you understand what these things were intended for. Apples might stand for rifles; corn for shot guns; beans for pistols, and potatoes for ammunition, and anything else for food. This sheet would be a report of the number of arms found by those making the return.

Q. Was there any agreement between the members of the Order, as to how it should be understood by those to whom the report was made?

A. My instructions were to report by the secret cipher how many there were.—Each Township People reported to the Secretary of the Mother Temple how many arms and how much corn, apples, beans, and then the Secretary reported to the Grand Secretary of the State Council.

Q. Do you know of any attempts on the part of the members of this Order to arm the Order?

A. I only know that from here—say from members of the Order. I only know what Mr. Wilson told me.

Bear Hunting by a Woman.

One day a Lapp woman went out to fish on a lake, accompanied by her son, who was fourteen years old. When they had caught a sufficient supply, they landed on a part of the shore which was thickly overgrown with fir and underwood. Presently the woman's quick eye fell on a large heap of boughs, reeds, &c., and, on nearer inspection, she found a large hole underneath the mass of rubbish, and felt convinced that it was the entrance to a bear's "H" or cave. She was a courageous and resolute little body, and, nothing daunted by the discovery, nor reflecting that she was alone, hastened back to the boat to fetch her ax and rifle, (for a Lapp woman generally goes armed, and is usually an expert shot.) Now, her sisters in other parts of the civilized world would most probably have been frightened out of their wits, and have been a speedy retreat under such circumstances. Her own anxiety was lest the bear should get off.

On returning she proceeded to cut down a small fir sapling, which she pointed at one end, and gave it to the boy to bridle about in the hole to ascertain whether it was occupied or not, while she stood with uplifted ax a little on one side. No sooner was the pole inserted than out came the head of a monstrous bear, and down came the ax on her skull with such force that it remained sticking fast in the wound, and accompanied brain as she retreated to the further end of the cave. Time being up for round number two, and her opponent not putting in an appearance, she determined to try the effect of a shot. No sooner had she fired down the hole, than out bolted a cub about the size of a sheep dog, which her son cleverly managed to catch hold of by the hind leg. But it was too strong for the little fellow, and, after dragging him some distance, managed to get away.

Determined, however, not to lose him, mother and son went in pursuit, and speedily overtook the animal, which had taken to water. A few well administered taps with the end of the oar soon rendered him hors de combat.

Having secured him, the courageous little woman went back again to the "H" and gave it another stirring up. But all was still. Next she fired a second shot, but nothing moved. Concluding that the bear must be dead, or else have escaped during her absence, she determined to dig her out, a work of no small labor. Success, however, attended her exertions, for at length she found the bear quite dead, with the ax still sticking in her left skull, and, by her side, another cub as big as the first, with a bullet wound through his neck, also dead. No mean achievement for a woman and her boy.—All the Year Round.

SUSPENSE OF FAITH IN ENGLAND.—The London correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette says: "Never was there a land so far gone in the suspense of faith. A Swedish Episcopal clergyman, who had sojourne for a long time in London, recently published a book in his own country, in which he declares with great sorrow his conviction that two-thirds of the English clergymen in London were unbelievers in the doctrines of orthodox christianity. What amount of unbelief this implies in the underling, I leave you to judge. The leading literary men and philosophers are of all grades and shades of skepticism and heresy; and a host of scarcely one that is orthodox. John Stuart Mill, H. J. L. Lewis, and the minor lights of their class, are positivists; Carlyle, Browning and Ruskin are transcendentalists; "George Eliot," Miss Evans once, now Mrs. Lewis, is as she was when she translated Strauss, Leben Jesu; Dr. Garth Wilkinson is a spiritualist; Herbert Spencer, T. H. Huxley, Sir Charles Lyell, Prof. Tyndall, C. Darwin and his brother Erasmus, and the scientific men generally, are theistic philosophers; the newspaper men are generally Bohemians; and the poor people who have neither science nor philosophy to fall back upon, either take up with outworn superstitions, or drink deep and kill wivres whenever opportunity offers. In my opinion, the religious mind has never been in nearly so chaotic a condition as here.

GARIBOLDI.—It is not easy to conceive anything finer, simpler, more thoroughly unaffected or more truly dignified than the man himself. His noble head; his clear honest, brown eye; his finely-traced mouth, beautiful as a woman's and only strong up to sternness when anything light, foolish or mean had outraged him; and, such indirect knowledge of a council of thirteen.

Q. Do you know who the council of 16 were?

A. I do not know of such a council, never heard of it till I was arrested. I have some indirect knowledge of a council of thirteen.

Q. Was Dr. Wilson at the meeting in Chicago?

A. I cannot state.

Q. Did he tell you whether he was or not?

A. I am not positive; I do not think he did.

Q. You say you did have some indirect knowledge of the committee of thirteen. What was it?

A. I understood there was such a committee; that it was appointed by the Grand Commander, and known only to him and the members themselves.

Q. Did you ever hear of the appointment of a committee of ten?

A. The committee of ten that I think you refer to was not a committee. They were individuals selected, as my understanding was, to take care of Governor Morton.

TOWNSHIP AND THE HEART.—M. Deaneine, in a communication to the Academie des Sciences, exhibits another class in the lower half of civilization against the abuse of tobacco. He states that in the course of three years he has met, among eighty-three inveterate smokers, twenty-one instances of marked intemperance of the pulse, occurring in men from 27 to 42 years of age and not to be explained by organic lesion of the heart. The absence of such lesion or other condition of health capable of inducing intemperance of the action of the heart, and the fact that in nine of these instances, in which the use of tobacco was abandoned, the normal action of the organ was restored. M. Deaneine believes, will justify him in concluding that, in certain subjects, the abuse of tobacco may give rise to condition which may be termed "aneurism of the heart," characterized by intemperance in the movement of that organ and in the pulsation of the radial artery; and that in some cases a suspension or diminution in the practice of smoking is sufficient to cause an entire disappearance of this irregularity.—Medical Times and Gazette.

DYSPEPSIA, NERVOUSNESS, AND DEBILITY. Dr. STRICKLAND'S Tonic.—We can recommend those suffering with Loss of Appetite, Indigestion, or Dyspepsia, Nervousness and Nervous Debility, to use Strickland's Tonic. It is a vegetable preparation, free from alcoholic liquors; it strengthens the whole nervous system; it creates a good appetite, and is warranted to cure Dyspepsia and Nervous Debility.
